ACT I. — Mr. and Mrs. Telfer's Lodgings at No. 2, Brydon Crescent, Clerkenwell. May.

ACT II. — At Sir William Gower's, in Cavendish Square. June.

THERE WILL BE ONE INTERMISSION.

ACT III. — Again in Brydon Crescent. December.

ACT IV. — On the stage of the Pantheon Theatre. A few days later.

This production is dedicated to Professor Alan Billings, Department of Theatre and Drama, upon his retirement, for twenty-six years of service to the University of Michigan.

This production is an Associate entry in the American College Theatre Festival (ACTF). The aims of this national theatre education program are to identify and promote quality in college-level theatre production. To this end, each production entered is eligible for adjudication by a regional ACTF representative, and certain students are selected to participate in ACTF programs involving awards, scholarships, and special grants for actors, playwrights, designers, and critics at both the regional and national levels.

Unauthorized use of cameras or recording devices in this theatre is strictly forbidden. For everyone's benefit, latecomers will be seated at a suitable break or scene change.

The School of Music acknowledges the generosity of McKinley Associates, Inc.
whose support has helped make this production possible.

PROGRAM NOTES

In Trelawny of the 'Wells', Mr. Arthur Wing Pinero used the conventions of the theatre of his day while simultaneously reacting against them. By setting the play thirty years in the past, Mr. Pinero juxtaposed the stock characters of the previous theatrical tradition with his own more realistic playwriting. The play was Mr. Pinero's tribute to Tom Robertson, the first British playwright to reform drama towards realism. Mr. Pinero based his character of Tom Wrench on Mr. Robertson, making the play almost biographical. He crafted an accurate portrayal of the theatricality of backstage life at the start of the transformation to realism. The characters in Trelawny contend with the challenges of adapting to the new style of acting demanded by Wrench's (Robertson's) play.

Mr. Pinero's original audience would have been aware of the theatrical conventions of the previous era. For those of you who are not familiar with these conventions, an excerpt from the program notes of the original production might help in perceiving the complex hierarchy of the company:

A theatre is like a Hindoo (sic) household, and all the men and women before you are divided from each other by the law of the caste. In one corner sits a 'singing chambermaid' — a performer confined to acting such parts as waiting woman (with songs) and nothing else. On another couch is the 'first old woman' — an imperious-looking lady of the mother-in-law class — who has her sphere of action as strictly defined as that of a chess board queen. Near her you will observe a rather cheerful, middle-aged gentleman, known only dramatically as the 'first old man,' supported on his right by another middle-aged, rather thin gentleman, who is similarly known as the 'second old man.' The slim, genteel gentleman, not very young, who is talking to a handsome, commanding lady, is the 'light comedian,' but nothing more. His companion is known as the 'leading lady.' Near them is that highly important person, the 'leading low comedian,' almost faced by his more humble brother actor, the 'second low comedian.' Two other gentlemen, in different parts of the room, are known respectively as 'eccentric comedian' and 'utility actor,' and they have corresponding companions amongst the ladies.

It is not difficult to recognize within this hierarchical structure all of Tom Wrench's comrades and fellow-workers from Mr. Pinero's play. It was, however, in the midst of such an unreal little world, constructed of conventions with no relation to actual life, where Tom Robertson played 'utility,' and dreamed of reforms.

As time passed, Mr. Pinero's play has become a sweet reminder of a bygone theatrical era in the same way as Mr. Robertson's play may have seemed to Mr. Pinero. By rediscovering the theatricality and the reality of these past traditions, this production celebrates the spirit of change in the theatre and the eternal beauty of its past creations.

We are proud to be celebrating our sixteenth year in Ann Arbor. Schoolkids' has been rated as one of the top twenty music stores in the country. Here's what folks are saying about us:

"Schoolkids' is a genuine 'record store' in the classic sense; its atmosphere and its regard for the music it sells is clearly unique in the business. It does not underestimate the taste or intelligence of its customers. It carries the widest spectrum of music—all sorts of music—that I've ever seen anywhere. Its employees are helpful, knowledgeable fans of music rather than mere button pushers. Aside from the obvious hits, the store goes out of its way to carry titles that, however obscure, are genuinely GOOD—a trait which fellow customers respect and appreciate. It also has the best selection of deleted records and CDs I've ever seen."

ABOUT THE ARTISTS

ARTHUR WING PINERO was born in 1855. He became a professional actor at age nineteen and a playwright at twenty-two. After marrying actress Myra Holmes in 1883, Pinero became a full-time dramatist and director of his own work the next year.

Among successful farces that Pinero wrote between 1885 and 1893 were The Magistrate, The Schoolmistress and Dandy Dick, along with a sentimental comedy, Sweet Lavendar (1888) and The Profligate (1889).

Though reviewers found its theme unpleasant, Pinero's best-known drama, The Second Mrs. Tanqueray (1893), was so powerful that it made him the leading dramatist of the decade. Knighted in 1909, Pinero continued to write until his death, with his last well-known play being The Enchanted Cottage (1922).
